This field is a List and I want to do this using Reflection. I would like to be able to do it in a generic way, meaning that I can just type it and it will work regardless of the type of List that the class has. I've tried this using reflection but there seems to be a problem when I am trying to return the List field of the child class from the parent class. Here is what I have so far: private void EvaluateChild(MethodInfo method) { object[] arguments = null; MethodInfo genericMethod = method.MakeGenericMethod(new[] { typeof(List).MakeGenericType(new Type[] { method.ReturnType })}).GetGenericArguments(); if (genericMethod != null) { ca3bf1094

What's new in version 8 The only changes to the `_Default_Keyboard_` are the ones already mentioned in the previous tutorial, including the keyboard shortcuts of Autocad. If you install the `Default Keyboard` option from the `_Preferences_` menu, the shortcuts of Autocad will be used in SketchUp. If you want to use the `_Keyboard_Options_Pop-up_` window to change the keyboard shortcuts of SketchUp, just install the `_SketchUp_Auto-keyboard`.
