In the about state there is a list of items that is being fetched from firebase. The list is being fetched and I render it with a and handle the click event. I have a form where user inputs her details and clicks on Add to cart. Once the form is submitted I go to the home state. Everything is working fine. What I am trying to do is: when the user comes to the home state I render a div that has a button. When the user clicks on the button, I wish to render the about state and go to the list of items. I wish to render a certain item, depending on what the user clicks. I think this is possible with react-router. How can I achieve it? Here is my code: import React, { Component } from 'react'; import { Router, Route, Link, withRouter } from 'react-router-dom'; import Home from './components/Home'; import About from './components/About'; import Item from './components/Item'; class App extends Component { render() { return(Home

The 49-year-old Goulburn-Metcalfe resident edged out triathlete Lorna Graham and former Matraville striker Gaurav Dhall to take the award for the fifth time in six years. "This was an extremely hard and competitive year," Young said. "I'm extremely proud of all the coaches and the teams who have been involved. "I'm lucky I've had two great coaches, brother and sister team Matt and Eileen Young. I'm also grateful to my wife Faye for all her support and my family for all the encouragement. "I was also particularly impressed by my players - they're very talented and really work hard. It was also a pleasure meeting so many wonderful young people in the community." Young also received an award for the best female athlete of the year - awarded to former Matraville athlete Grace Jagoe.
