The veteran marksman was sent to the war by his. . July 18, 2011 · USA Today American Sniper ranks #1 in the box office and is projected to be the highest-grossing film of the year at the domestic box office. The movie, directed by Clint Eastwood, has produced the highest per-screen average of any film in the top 50. It's also playing in theaters everywhere. Critics have heaped praise on the film. It's an awards season contender. The movie's strong performance at the box office comes after box-office analysts initially told USA TODAY that it would probably do about $30M during the first weekend of release -- a fraction of what the film will gross at the domestic box office. But after "American Sniper" opened to $4.5 million on Friday, few had expected the movie to do so well. "It's really a remarkable weekend," says box-office analyst Jeff Bock. "For any film, to generate that kind of number on its opening weekend is amazing." Bock says Americans responded to a film that is a reflection of the recent wars in Iraq and Afghanistan -- conflicts that many believe were partly inspired by the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the U.S. "The counter-terrorism underpinnings of the film seem to have resonated," Bock says. "American Sniper" is directed by Clint Eastwood, who has made a reputation for himself over the past 20 years with films such as "Mystic River," "Gran Torino," "Changeling,"
